Online Payroll and HR, interacting right across
your business

■ Welcome to the world of ADP freedom

Once in a while something inspirational comes along – something that can change the way you do things forever.

Imagine a world where you are free of administration, where you're given time to develop and nurture your human resources; safe in the knowledge that you are always dealing with accurate, up-to-date and secure information.

Successful businesses drive their human resource strategies by utilising the most effective and streamlined processes available.

Fast, efficient and effective use of your employees' personal information saves time, effort, and of course money. Only by harnessing the true power of the web will you achieve this sense of freedom.

After all, isn't that what technology was supposed to deliver for us?

So what is freedom?

Freedom is...

the power to determine action without restraint.

ADP freedom is...

the gateway to your HR and Payroll utopia. It is a powerful mixture of software and service that finally delivers on the promise of web technology; less time, less cost, less risk.

ADP speaks your language

Built by the world's leading experts, our experience in best practice coupled with a ground-up approach to harnessing the real power of the web, means you truly are working to your maximum potential. Increased accuracy, efficiency, and access all mean your organisation is making best use of modern technology without compromising those necessary but burdensome jobs.

Furthermore, ADP freedom will allow you to move beyond reactionary task management. It will give you the power to analyse and drive your business through modelling and reporting tools so you really can maximise your people's potential and reach your goals.

So, a better way of working that doesn't leave you swamped in administration. A way that allows all parts of the organisation to interact with lifecycle changes in a secure, controlled environment, leaving you to focus on maximising your human resource potential.

Organisations don't stand still. They are dynamic and constantly changing, as people interact and make things happen. With a high degree of flexibility built in, ADP freedom can morph to fit whatever priorities you establish, and cope seamlessly with the variety of tasks your company may be undertaking at any one time.
